The original, extremely charming Italian advertising inscriptions from the 1950s have been preserved.

On one side of the car is the text: 'Coricidin ; stronca l'incipiente raffreddore'. Translation : Coricidin ; crushes the incipient cold.

On the other side of the car is the advertising text : 'Veramon ; Toglie il Dolore'. Translation : Veramon (aspirin) ; takes the pain away.

The current owner bought the car in 2014 and did not want to restore the car because of the beautiful patina, but used it as an 'art' object.

After all, as they say in English, 'It is original only once'.
